

West Coast REEF Field Surveys - 2003

REEF Field Surveys are a great introduction to fish identification for novice fishwatchers, and a fun way for experienced surveyors to build their life list while interacting with fellow fishwatchers.

Coralline Sculpin

REEF Surveyor with a Lingcod

Vermillion Rockfish

As a survey volunteer you will gather data at locations especially important to REEF's growing marine life database. Between survey dives you will enjoy informative fish identification presentations by REEF staff.

Channel Islands National Marine Sanctuary - September 16 - 20 M/V Conception

Dive the majestic kelp forests and rocky reefs of the Channel Islands and experience the underwater beauty of Southern California. During this live-aboard dive trip we will visit several islands and conduct fish surveys inside and outside of newly created marine reserves.

Package includes 5 nights accommodation aboard the M/V Conception, all diving (up to 18 dives), air refills, all meals while on the boat, and daily marine life identification review seminars. $540

All prices per person. An additional $100 tax-deductible REEF fee is added to the full package cost to cover the cost of trip leaders, seminars, and survey materials.

So why not join in? Take a dive vacation that counts and join REEF for a FIELD SURVEY. Contact Dive Reservations, Inc. at 888-363-3345 or reef@diveres.com for more information, or visit www.reef.org/fieldsurv/index.htm.
